OTHER MATTERS

After confirming with the Secretary that there are no other remaining matters on the agenda, the Chairman requested Mr. Melanio Dela Cruz to read aloud questions and comments sent by the stockholders.

A question was raised on the prospects of full-service equity brokerages, such as the Corporation, in light of the increasing availability of multi-asset investment offerings in the market. Specifically, the stockholder asked whether the Corporation was considering alternative asset classes, such as cryptocurrency, for diversification.

The Chairman explained that, as a business, the Corporation continuously explores new products to offer to the market. However, he observed that the local market is not yet ready for more sophisticated products such as cryptocurrency. While such are popular among younger traders, there remains limited understanding of the risks involved, with most investors focusing only on volatility.

The Chairman further noted that the Corporation has always been an early adopter of new possibilities, citing its pioneering efforts in providing online access to the market. Even so, the profitability of online brokerage services for the mass market remains in its early stages despite being available for nearly a decade.

He emphasized that at the appropriate time, the Corporation will be among the first to participate in offering new products, but for now, it takes a cautious stance given the readiness of the investing public. The Corporation continues to provide accessible online trading platforms, study regulatory developments from the Philippine Stock Exchange and the Securities Exchange Commission, and evaluate new proposals such as short selling. The Chairman concluded that while Corporation is open to adopting products that are profitable and whose risks are well understood by its customers, at present, it will focus on strengthening its existing services.

Thereafter, it was noted that other questions sent in by shareholders have been noted, and will be responded to by email.

ADJOURNMENT

There being no other matter to be discussed, the meeting was, upon motion, duly made and seconded, adjourned.
